EVENING GLOW BY INNESS BRINGS $5,500

Landscape Fetches Highest Price at Anderson Sale.

At the Anderson Galleries last evening group of 108 paintings from the collections of Mrs. Harriet A. Curtis, the late Daniel F. Appl-ton of New York city, Mr. John C. Tomlinson and others late Daniel F. Appl-ton of New York city, Mr. John C. Tomlinson and others sold for a total of $19,144. A fine example of George Inness, "Evening Glow," a canvas 22x36 inches, from the Harriet A. Curtis collection, fetched the highest price of the evening. It sold to John Levy for $5,500. The subject was of a wheat field at harvest time partly sheafed and stacked, with a clump of dark trees at the right and a man silhouetted in the right foreground, and the orange disc close to the horizon.

A landscape by the late Francis Murphy, called "Autumn Evening," went to A. J. Halow for $2,750, the second highest price of the sale. A "Declining Day," by George Inness, Jr., sold to John Levy for $450, and an Alexander H. Wyant, "Autumn Evening, Unfinished," went to Clapp & Graham for $975. A diptych, "Donors With Saints," by Barthel Bruyn the Elder, was purchased by Marshail Ball for $450, and a "Recalcitrant Cow," by Julien Dupre, by the same, for $305.

Warwick House paid $410 for a Belgian painting of the nineteenth century in the manner of Clays, "Near the Mouth of the Scheldt" A "Hercuise at the Court of Omphale," attributed to Pietro da Cortona, was bought on "Order" for $410, and an "Autumn Idyl," by Ralph Blakelock, sold to Henry Schultis for $330. The "Portrait of a Young Woman," attributed to Ferdinand Bol, was knocked down to Marshall Ball for $300.

Erlanger Again Sued by Klaw on the Gaiety Lease

Latter Would Block Former Partner From Purchase of Theatre.

The sum of the disputes between Mar Klaw and Abraham L. Erlanger, which have come before the courts since the theatrical partnership of Klaw & Erlanger was dissolved in 1919, was in Klaw sued his former business associate of many years in the Supreme Court in onnection with the Galety Theatre, demanding that Erlanger render to him an accounting of the business of the theatre during the last two years and that he be enjoined from cancelling the lease of the property until 1825.

The Forsix Company, a corporation in which the former partners held a half interest each and which is the actual leasee of the theatre, is named as codefendant with Erianger. The burden of Klaw's complaint is that Erlanger, while enjoying the benefits of a partnership interest, has been trying to arrange with persons outside the partnership to get control of the theatre for his own purposes.

In his complaint Klaw sets forth that they leased the theatre in 1919 at a rent of $43,750 for ten years and that it paid them $90,000 profit the first year they had it and $120,000 the next. By the lease they held their landlord had reserved the right of cancellation after six months notice if he should sell the property. Klaw complains that Erlanger has made a contract to buy the property and will become the owner of it on January 14, and in anticipation of his ownership has sent Klaw a cancellation notice to take effect next June.

Proof of Erlanger's intent to be unfair, according to the complaint, is to be had from the fact that Erlanger will own the Fulton Theatre, which stands beside the Gaicty, by the same purchase which will make him owner of the Gaicty, but has not so far served on the management of the Fulton any notice of a desire to cancel that lease.

J. P. SLOCUM BANKRUPT.

Manager and Producer Owes $11,-683 and Has $100.

John P. Slocum, theatrical manager and producer, with offices in the Globe Theatre Building, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy yesterday, declaring his liabilities to be $11,683 and his assets as $100.

Among the creditors conficeed in his Boston, Nov. 25.—Trustees of the Christian Science Publishing Society to day notified the board of directors of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, the mother church, that they would accept as final the Massachusetts Supreme Court ruling that the directors have power over the trustees.

They announced they would cooperate with the directors in the appointment of their successors. The statement was fixed by Herbert W. Eustace, Lamont Rowlands and Paul Harvey.

The directors were informed in a separate letter that the trustees had received the resignations of Frederick Dixon as editor and John R. Watts as business manager of the Christian Soience Monitor.
